CCCLD to open Archive Library, at the Heritage Center in Georgetown

For years, the Clear Creek Library District has collected books, articles, newspapers, maps, pictures and other historical documents related to the history of the County. We've rescued documents from other organizations that might otherwise have been discarded or moldering in a basement somewhere. Until now we haven't been able to do much more with these documents than store them. Now that the Herit-

From the Library Director

Sue Lathrop

Every time we think we have discovered everything we can do with our library, it seems we find a new program like adult crafting or revive an old tradition such as the Sit 'n Stitch. But when you think about it, most of these programs have one element in common — getting people with similar interests together. Today's libraries are filling a need that used to be filled by dozens of social organizations, many of which no longer exist or have fallen out of fashion. We still have Rotary Clubs and the Masons, the Eastern Stars and so on, but relatively few people belong to such clubs and organizations. And even though we might have more opportunity to join such clubs up here in Clear Creek County, it seems that fewer and fewer people join. Still, the basic need for getting together with people with similar interests continues to exist.

One of the things I have noticed over the years, is that we vastly underestimate the talents of the people around us. We have amazing people living here, and they know and can share amazing things with the rest of us. Do you have something you can share with us and your community? Is there something you would like to learn? We would love to hear from you. Please check out our summer events — we would love to connect you with some new people who share your interests!

hours once we make the materials more accessible. We will also be able to use the second floor performance room for library events such as movie nights and Halloween Bookfest.

Thanks to a Colorado Historical Records Advisory Board (CHRAB) grant, we already have funds to begin to store and process some of the documents in our possession. We are hoping that we will receive more photos and documents to add to the library from citizens with collections they are willing to entrust to the library. We won't keep everything that is donated to the library — for example, we will probably digitize most photos and send the originals for safe storage at the Denver Public Library, since our local storage area is fairly small.

Help shape the future of the Georgetown Library

As you may know, the library in Georgetown is in the early stages of planning for a renovation of the building. We would like to use the space we have more efficiently and perhaps look for ways to increase our capacity. We also want to involve the community by seeking ideas and thoughts on this issue. We have a survey on our website, www.clearcreeklibrary.org, and a written one available at the front desk. Please share your thoughts verbally with us even if you do not wish to fill out a brief survey.

ISPL presents A View of Israel

Come travel to another part of the world with us at 6 p.m. June 11! Presenter and Friends of the Idaho Springs Library President Galen Goldsmith recently returned from a study abroad program where she was a Visiting Research Fellow at Hebrew University in Jerusalem for the fall semester of 2014.

According to Goldsmith, Israel is an exceptional nation for a number of reasons. First, it existed as a nation for the last 2,000 years because Jews had their own law, which regulated their communities within every nation where they dwelt. While some nations have existed for millennia, Israel did not exist as a physical place at all for 2,000 years, and then was re-constituted in the 19th and 20th centuries. Additionally, Israel has unique religious significance and due to the Bible and the Quran, it is an important destination for many different people.

Try these great summer reads!

All the Light You Cannot See*, by Anthony Doerr -

An epic novel about a blind French girl and a German boy in occupied France and their struggles to survive World War II. 2015 winner of the Pulitzer Prize.

How to Be Both*, by Ali Smith - deals with gender issues, moral questions, the mystery of death, the value of art, and several other important topics. It is a dual novel with discrete meanings. Shortlisted for the Man Booker Prize.

Endangered*, by C. J. Box - Nonstop action, a twisty plot, and great characters make his latest a must-read. Box weaves vivid descriptions of Wyoming's landscape with the personal drama of Pickett's family into a great read.

Make sure your kids are safe at the library!

There is nothing more important than your children — and although we love to see them at the library, we can't take care of them the way you can!

Most children are well-behaved and rarely create problems at the library (or anywhere else), but sometimes problems can find them, so please make sure your child is prepared with your phone numbers when coming to the library and has an alternate place to go if needed. Also, if the child will be here all day, please make sure he or she has a lunch, as we do not provide snacks in the summer.

We would also like to remind parents that you shouldn't leave your children alone at the library if they need your supervision. If a child misbehaves, we will ask them to leave the building and/or grounds. Don't send your child alone to the library if your child cannot handle this — you know your child's abilities and circumstances, but we don't.

If a child is misbehaving or we feel a child is too young to be at the library alone and we cannot contact a parent or guardian, we may be forced to call the police if an unsafe situation arises.

While we have some basic safety features in place, such as Internet filters, we simply don't have the staff or resources to monitor every child who will spend time at the library this summer. Filters only have limited success, and children are amazing when it comes to finding ways around them. We also do not censor reading or video materials, so please make sure you know what your child is bringing home at the end of the

New format for Teen Summer Reading Program

The old school teen summer reading program consists of a self-paced reading program and prize drawing. Teens have also played a pivotal role in the kids' summer reading by volunteering to register kids and help them travel around the summer reading game board. These programs are still available and we still need teen volunteers. However, thanks to a grant from the Colorado State Library, teens can now participate in their own library activity this summer with the Clear Creek libraries film project. Join in on the fun of creating a film this summer and learn the techniques, technology and software associated with filmmaking with local videographer Thom Paxton. The program begins with a creative dramatics workshop with Play-ground Theatre gurus Mia Sole and Jeff Haycock and ends with a movie premier...Best Summer Ever!

More fabulous summer reads for adults!

The Guest Cottage, by Nancy Thayer - Back in Nantucket with a great escapist novel for the summer!

The Nightingale, by Kristin Hannah - She has captured a particular slice of French life during WWII. Two sisters differ about the eminent threat of occupation. What do we do in moments of great challenge?

The Rumor, by Elin Hilderbrand - A wedding... Nantucket... All the messiness of friendships and major family events. Another interesting beach read.

Beach Town, by Mary Kay Andrews - This one has lots of heart and humor. A large budget movie in a small, sleepy town in the Florida panhandle.

Rock With Wings, by Anne Hillerman - She combines Native American lore with present day social issues in a southwestern setting as effectively as her late father.

Dry Bones, by Craig Johnson - Wyoming's beloved lawman takes on his coldest case yet. Walt Longmire is an easy man to like. Enjoy another book in this grand series.

Our Souls at Night, by Kent Haruf - Holt, Colorado... A man and a woman in later life wrestle with the events of their lives and their hopes for the imminent future. Kent Haruf passed away in November 2014.
